How did designing patterns on knitwear start?

It all began with the competition "Designer's Zone" which was organised by the internet shop dresowka.pl. Although, I hadn't designed before I decided I would have a go. You need to take up a challenge to develop yourself. And it turned out my designs such as: "City", "Rainbow" and "Zebra" have been printed. And so it all started

Once in our conversations you mentioned that you are an engineer? What does this have to do with designing patterns by you?

You're right. Every day I don't have a lot in common with designing. From time to time only, it happens to me to draw some ikons or design a layout for an aplication that is being created. Although I like my job a lot, my passion is creation.... from designing a pattern through sewing a piece of clothing for my kids, to baking a McQueen-shaped birthday cake for my son.

Which design is the closest to your heart?

Because of the rising popularity of the design I should probably say "Zebra", but frankly speaking I always like the latest design best because it gives me a lot of happiness. So, today I am going to tell you that my new "Bikes" panels are the closest to my heart. I am very critical towards everything I do. I would change most of my designs if I worked on them today. Probably it is a sign that I am still developing.

Speaking of patterns, where do you get your inspiration from?

Recently, my biggest inspiration is my little son. He comes to me and asks "Mummy, will you sew a hoody with a digger for me, please?". "I'll try" I reply and then, in my free time, I sit in front of my computer and design another vehicles. The idea of "Zebra" design came to me suddenly while I was hanging out my laundry, "Tic Tac Toe" came to me in my dream literally. Each particular idea for a design has its own history. It is very common that the design is born in the process of creation, initially having only its outline. I think only the "Zebra" design was created in my head from the very beginning to the very end before I sat in front of my computer. Last time when I was drawing a train, I created a bike...it is like a woman shopping: you shop for shoes but you buy trousers. The train then must wait a lilltle bit longer until I "feel" it...and the woman will definately buy those shoes as well :)

Kasiu, thank you very much you have found some time for us. I wish you success in your designer's field :)
